

Dalwiddle Hall

Singular possession:
the flower's petals – add
's to a singular noun.

Plural possession: the friends'
coats – add an apostrophe
after the plural 's'.

Apostrophes can also tell you to whom or what something belongs, these are known as apostrophes of possession.

They can show singular possession: the dog's collar. Or they can show plural possession: the dogs' collars.

Plural words: Some nouns, like the word 'people' are already plural. When adding an apostrophe, put the apostrophe after the noun and then add an s like you would for singular possession. For example: the people's cars.

Dalwiddle Hall is ancient. It used to belong to a famous actor before Benny Dalwiddle bought it when he first married Ginger Floss. Sadly times have changed and now Dalwiddle Hall is open to the public. Hugh Dalwiddle has been approving the signs to go around his home. Can you help him add the apostrophes? Decide if it is singular or plural possession.

Please Do Not Touch The Bees Hives.	An Actors Story – See The Exhibition	The Horses Stables	Mrs Tuppys Tea Room.
Ghosts Gallery	The Servants Room	The Pets Room	Babies Changing Area
Megans Games Room	Gentlemans Lobby	Don't Climb The Trees Branches	Hugh Dalwiddles Snooker Room
Womens Changing Rooms	The Peoples Swimming Pool	Mices Cage	Mens Toilets
The Childrens Play Room	The Families Tree House	The Sheeps Field	The Dogs Tails

Challenge

Can you design and make labels for the following items. Decide whether to make them into singular or plural possession. For example: strawberries for the guests – the guests' strawberries.

Petting Zoo for the children
Enclosure for the wolves
Maze for the children
Investigation zone for the adults
Car park for the delivery vans

Potting shed for the gardener
Exhibition centre for schools
Lunch room for pupils
Picnic area for families
Field for dogs